June 14, Flag Day, has ever carried the deepest meaning to every true American. This year the day will carry a tenfold significance, as the nation celebrates the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington. For to General Washington tradition credits a leading part in the very designing of this flag, and what he did to give it meaning is well known to every American as long as our country lives.

On June 14, 1777, Congress resolved: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

In these simple words, authority was given to General Washington to design the flag and on the same day tradition has it that he went to the house of Betty Ross on that visit which has become one of the finest pages of American folklore.

With him, according to the account, were Robert Morris and George Ross, one of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence and the uncle of Betty Ross, deceased husband.

On entering her modest house in Arch street, Philadelphia, they were said to have found Mistress Ross sitting at her needlework and humming a tune—softly, however, so that she might hear the tinkle of the bell on the door of her shop.

The front of the house and General Washington thus simply stated his errand: "Mistress Ross, we have come to ask you to help in making a flag for our country. We do not feel pleased with the grand union flag because of the King's colors in the canton, so we have planned another."

The "grand union" flag referred to by Washington was the one he himself had designed and first flung to the breeze on January 1, 1776, during his siege of Boston. This was at the time when the Revolutionists still felt they were fighting, not the British King, but his ministers; hence Washington's flag consisted of the thirteen red and white stripes, and here in its canton the King's crosses of St. George and St. Anthony. "By 1777 the Revolutionists were fighting solely for an American nation, and they wanted an American flag."

Mrs. Ross, it is said, undertook the making of the flag eagerly, and with an exalted sense of the unusual honor conferred upon her. Not only was she suggested to Washington a slight correction in the design, which bore six pointed stars instead of the five-pointed type of heraldry. With a slip of her sewing needle she cut a folded paper and held forth a perfect five-pointed star to show what she meant. For a few minutes longer the design was discussed, and as quickly as nimble fingers could execute the task.

So, in this homely fashion which so well suits the American spirit, was born coming almost like a direct gift from him, to fly ever since over the nation that he also designed. Today, every American is privileged to ponder on the stupendous human events and influences that have flowed from this simple incident at the house of Betty Ross a century and a half ago.

Waterford Flag Day

Following a custom established by Capt. Granville Pernal, many years ago, the schools of Waterford united in their Flag Day exercises on Friday, June 3rd. The service was held this year at the Grange Hall at South Waterford and the large room was crowded with pupils, parents and friends who had gathered to listen to an excellent program. The features were nearly all colonial in their nature and the appropriate costumes, songs and dances gave the program novelty and unusual interest. All the parts were very well carried out which showed much hard work and careful training. The program:

"Making America American"

By Pauline Howe

To the American youth of today more than ever before comes the stirring challenge, Make America American! Make America American! As the faint echo fades away we begin to ourselves just how we can have a part in this nation wide movement?

My conception of "making America American" is very simple. Doubtless there are people who will disagree. I respect them for their opinion; let me explain mine to you.

I believe that a first step in this line should be a strict enforcement of all laws. If a law were not of some value it would never have been made a law. Therefore it behooves all citizens to abide by all laws, even those which do not particularly apply to them.

The second essential step is education. America ranks among the highest along educational lines. Here is considered all important an arithmetic. Manual training and Home Economics, carefully taught, prepare children for useful future. School work is made as interesting as possible from the kindergarten up. Let us remember that the boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. Should we not then give them the best training possible?

As a third step I suggest that more stress should be placed on religion. Ex-president Calvin Coolidge said, at the time of his presidency, "What our country needs is more religion." I believe we should get back to the faith of our forefathers at the present time. If America is to stand for anything, it is to stand for freedom. Freedom is a word to follow, should she not give this question her serious thought?

Since the founding of the American nation these three principles, law, education and religion have been the "building blocks" of our western civilization. If these were important yesterday, are they not doubly important today? The future? You ask—America is young! Look at the remarkable progress that has been made in about three hundred years! But as to the future we cannot predict exactly! But with special emphasis on these three important points, enforcement of laws, education, and religion, America can be making no backward step.

May I conclude this brief essay by quoting President Hoover, "America is looking for further progress in the future, yet no citizen has yet been able to explain what it is like."

"Making America American"

By Ruth Newton

Dr. George A. Gordon has said, "The Republic of the United States is in fact a nation of immigrants, a nation of aliens. All have made the great migration from the old world to the new world, and will be known to every American as long as our country lives."

On June 14, 1777, Congress resolved: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

Farm Bureau Notes

Four more Dairywomen have been added to the list of twenty-six, who will be included in the Dairy Record Club to be held in the county the last of this month. The twenty-six men were given in the last issue. The four additional are: G. K. Hastings &amp; Son, East Bethel; P. C. Smith, West Bethel; E. J. Stearns, Bethel; and Dana O. Dudley, Bryant Pond. Three hundred and eight cows are now enrolled for this milk testing started in October last year county agent for information if interested.

Virgil N. Smith, an orchardist in Buckfield, has recently completed work on an attractive new house and stable which replaces buildings lost by fire. A new 250 gallon power sprayer operating two lines of hose and quad gun in doing a great spraying job on his commercial orchard, he states.

G. K. Hastings and his two sons, "Bob" and "Bill", at East Bethel, are real farmers. Keeping an Extension Farm Account for the last ten years as a guide to their farm operations, they have gradually worked up to the top of the list of successful farmers. This year they are planting nineteen acres of Green Mountain potatoes, part of which they plan to enter for certification. They are also conducting a half-acre magnesium plot to determine the need for this element on their own farm.

In addition to the potatoes they are brooding 700 chickens from their own hatchery. Pedigreeing, which involves trap nesting, was started last fall to develop highest possible production in their flock. These boys are also dairymen, not slow to take advantage of the milk testing service offered by the Dairy Record Club and are planning on constructing a safety bull pen this summer or fall.

As a third step I suggest that more stress should be placed on religion. Ex-president Calvin Coolidge said, at the time of his presidency, "What our country needs is more religion." I believe we should get back to the faith of our forefathers at the present time. If America is to stand for anything, it is to stand for freedom. Freedom is a word to follow, should she not give this question her serious thought?

Since the founding of the American nation these three principles, law, education and religion have been the "building blocks" of our western civilization. If these were important yesterday, are they not doubly important today? The future? You ask—America is young! Look at the remarkable progress that has been made in about three hundred years! But as to the future we cannot predict exactly! But with special emphasis on these three important points, enforcement of laws, education, and religion, America can be making no backward step.

May I conclude this brief essay by quoting President Hoover, "America is looking for further progress in the future, yet no citizen has yet been able to explain what it is like."

(Communication)
The people of this vicinity are very anxious for a little information in regard to the management of our high school in this vicinity.

For ten years we have had a very satisfactory principal in the person of Mr. Libby. Now he is to be superseded by someone and no one knows any cause for his removal or by whose authority it is done. If this is the act of our school board, let them come out openly and say so and give their reasons for the act. If it is the act of the superintendent, we request the same frankness from him. We are sure it is not from the parents who support the school or the parents of the scholars.

I believe about 200 of those people have sent in a petition to have Mr. Libby retained and if they want 200 more, they can be had.

It is a lamentable fact that the people most interested in the conduct of our schools (taxpayers and parents) have without their knowledge or consent, lost all control over their schools, which seems to have been given over to some outside authority.

We have a superintendent of schools whose salary and office expenses total each year around the $5,000 mark. When many of us who are still on earth were children, our education cost much less money would nearly cover the entire school expense of this town of Paris, both high and common schools. We are confident that West Paris High School can be well conducted without the assistance or interference of our superintendent and if the towns of Paris and Woodstock cannot supply a man or board of men for $5,000 a year that can do all we need to have done, then that is the worst accusation I have ever heard against these towns.

I believe the change that we need the most is the repeal of the law that forces on the towns this very expensive and unsatisfactory system. We believe our schools can be improved with the expenditure of less money.

We have a little suspicion that underneath this movement there may lurk the underlying idea of accomplishing the disincorporation of the West Paris School. If such an object were to be accomplished, why should it not be a good plan to make trouble in this school?

Now will the Superintendent or the School Board, or both, please explain just what the trouble is and why Mr. Libby is removed? Yours truly,
—Art L. Cummings.
